

PRODUCTS THAT ARE NOT SAFE FOR INFANT SLEEP

sources: cpsc.gov, healthychildren.org, adensmom.com

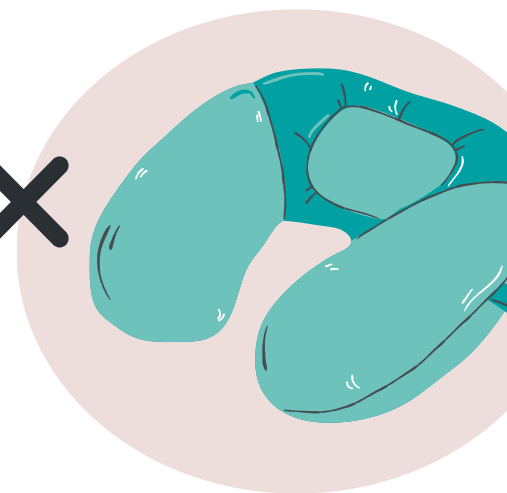

ROCKING

If the product is on a rocker (and doesn't lock into a stationary mode) it's not safe for sleep.

INCLINE

If the product places baby at an incline it's not safe for sleep. This covers bouncy seats, swings (including Mamaroo), "nappers" and "sleepers."

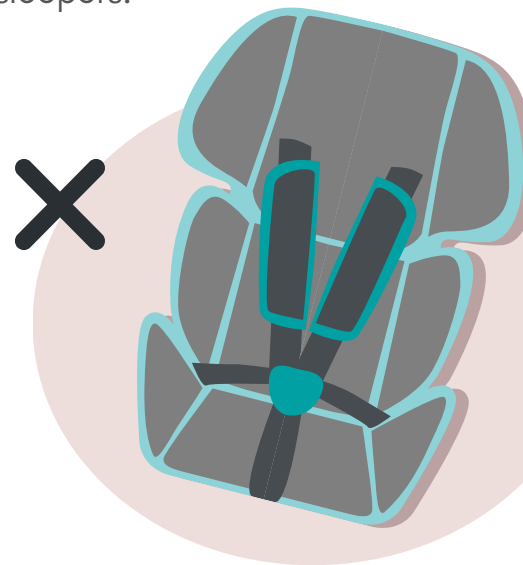

PADDING

If the product resembles a pillow it's not safe for sleep. Dockatot, Snuggle Me, and Boppy are common examples.

3 WALLS

If the product doesn't have four walls, it's a safety gamble. Bedside co-sleepers don't meet the same rigorous safety standards that cribs, bassinets, and playards do.

BUCKLES

If the product has straps or buckles, it's not safe for sleep. Car seats and strollers are fine while you're out and about, but they should never been used for routine sleep.
